

OH WHAT A TANGLED WEB

(Or: The ART of Endeavoring to DECEIVE)

By A. True Ott, PhD, ND

July, 13, 2009

Today, July 13, 2009 (7-13-09) the Club of Rome's World Health Organization (The W.H.O.) issued its marching orders concerning "Novel H1N1" pandemic influenza vaccinations to all United Nations "member" countries.

Just as the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) issues "recommendations" for what it terms "Voluntary Contributions" (TAX PAYMENTS), the W.H.O. today issued its "strong recommendations" (i.e. orders) on "Pandemic (H1N1) 2009 Vaccines." Of course, failure to follow the "recommendations" (i.e. phony laws) and timely file your "Voluntary Contributions" will cause IRS agents to visit your home or business, which visit usually results in arrest and imprisonment. Likewise, failure to follow the W.H.O. edicts may result in U.N. sanctions to members.

On Tuesday, July 7, 2009 – the W.H.O.'s THIRTEEN (13) all-wise "SAGES" (acronym for Strategic Advisory Group of Experts) on Immunization held an "extraordinary" meeting in Geneva Switzerland – and from this "extraordinary" meeting, the W.H.O.'s 13 world-renowned vaccination proponents and manufacturers came away with the following edicts:

1. ALL COUNTRIES should immunize their HEALTH-CARE WORKERS as a FIRST PRIORITY to protect the essential health infrastructure. Following health-care workers in order of high-priority for the vaccines are: A) Pregnant Women B) toddlers older than 6 months who suffer from chronic medical problems C) Healthy Young Adults age 15-49 years D) Healthy Children E) Healthy Adults between 50-64 years old, and last of course, F) OLD FOLKS older than 65 years old. (Oddly, this is basically a completely reversed order of priority for "seasonal" flu vaccines – with pregnant women advised AGAINST taking the shot at all.)
2. These wise Sages ADMIT that "since new technologies are involved in the production" of these "pandemic" vaccines, they "have not yet been extensively evaluated for their safety". Therefore, the Sages declare that it is "very important to implement post-marketing surveillance of the highest possible quality." Post marketing surveillance??? Shouldn't this be done first? In other words, they don't really know what level of side-effects to expect. This is simply mass HUMAN EXPERIMENTATION – and is unconscionable to advise giving it to pregnant women as a high priority!
3. The SAGES clearly declared that the "spread of the pandemic virus is unstoppable" – therefore, their goal is to QUICKLY provide vaccines for ALL U.N. Nations. Therefore, the 13 wise sages authorized the "production and use of vaccines formulated with oil-in-water adjuvants and live attenuated influenza viruses”. In other words, the sages declared it to be safe to use SQUALENE and/or INSECT DNA in the vaccines.

Exactly who are these learned W.H.O. “Sages” and what exactly are their backgrounds? Can THE WORLD trust them to be fair and objective regarding the safety and effectiveness of experimental vaccines? The WHO “Sages” are:

1. Chairperson – Professor David Salisbury, Director of Immunization – United Kingdom.
2. Professor Jon S. Abramson, Wake Forest University School of Medicine, Department of Pediatrics
3. Professor Hyam Bahour, Chair, Department of Family and Community Medicine, Damascus University, Syria.
4. Professor Zulfiqar Ahmed Bhutta – Professor of Pediatrics and Child Health, Aga Khan University, Pakistan.
5. Dr. Supamit Chunsuttiwat Senior Medical Officer, Immunization Head – Ministry of Public Health, Thailand.
6. Professor David Durrheim – Director of Health Protection-Vaccinations, Australia,
7. Professor J. Peter Figueroa, Director of Vaccinations – West Indies, Jamaica,
8. Dr. Xiaofeng Liang – Director, National Immunization Programme, Chinese Center for Disease Control and Prevention, Beijing China.
9. Professor Elizabeth Miller, Head, Immunization Department, Health Protection Agency, Centre for Infections, London – United Kingdom.
10. Professor Helen Rees, Head, Division of Epidemiology and Vaccination, University of Witwatersrand, South Africa,
11. Professor Arthur L. Reingold, Head, Division of Epidemiology, University of California, Berkeley, United States of America,
12. Dr. Jane Soepardi, National TB Programme Manager, Ministry of Health, Indonesia, and
13. Professor Oyewale Tomori – Professor of Virology and Immunization, Redeemer’s University, Nigeria.

I submit that these 13 “sages” are nothing more than a rogue’s gallery of individuals who have demonstrated a long history of selling out to big pharmaceutical interests world-wide. Today, this un-elected ad-hoc group of “wise sages” are basically formulating policy that may well negatively and permanently effect the health and well-being of BILLIONS of innocent human beings on planet earth?

Perhaps these 13 “wise sages” should take the time to objectively research the subject of “oil-in-water adjuvants” (synthetic squalene oil produced from raw crude petroleum identified as MF-59) before authorizing its use. Even a short, cursory glance into this subject would lead them to the same research conclusions that researcher/author Gary Matsumoto discovered in his excellent book, "Vaccine – A".

In Chapter 3 of his book, "The Greatest Story Never Told" Matsumoto writes: "There was also one more flaw in this design: oils are potentially toxic, and the Fort Detrick team knew it. In Bruce Ivins' frequently cited paper on the Army's pursuit of an improved human anthrax vaccine, he noted that oil adjuvants "can provoke toxic, allergic, ulcerative, or lethal reactions." This should have prevented him from committing Fort Detrick to an oil-boosted anthrax vaccine in the first place, but for reasons that Ivins has never publicly disclosed, it did not deter him. Neither he nor anyone else who worked on this vaccine at Fort Detrick has published an explanation for why they did this."

"Anyone even remotely familiar with oil additives for vaccines could have told you that they were a big problem. For reasons science has yet to fully explain, oils and other fatty substances found in the body, like cholesterol and phospholipids, are potent stimulants to the immune system. Try as they might, scientists trying to harness this property have yet to come up with an oil adjuvant safe enough to use in humans. Since the 1930's, the gold standard has been the aforementioned Freund's Complete Adjuvant—an elixir banned from human use because of its toxicity. When Freund's Incomplete Adjuvant, a vaccine additive made chiefly from mineral oil, proved too risky as well, scientists tried changing the oil."

"In the early 1970s, scientists at UCLA Medical Center, including one of the most respected rheumatologists in the country at the time, Carl M. Pearson, started looking for a less toxic alternative to Freund's. They ran a series of experiments with a variety of edible oils on the assumption that because they were "metabolizable" the body could process them safely. In other words, if you could ingest them, you could inject them. Intuitively, this premise seems somewhat dubious: your body could metabolize a cheeseburger, for instance, but you couldn't liquefy it in a blender and inject the resulting slurry, and then expect to feel well in the morning. Pearson's associates, Michael Whitehouse and Frances W. Beck, injected more than dozen of these metabolizable oils into rats, including castor oil, coconut oil, olive oil, sesame seed oil, cottonseed oil, corn oil, wheat germ oil, safflower oil, cod liver oil, oleomargarine, and the commercial lubricating oil, silicone. When these were mixed with heat-killed Mycobacteria tuberculosis, the UCLA group got results it didn't expect. All of the oils were toxic; they all induced arthritis in rats with varying degrees of severity. The data changed Whitehouse's views on the safety of metabolizable oils. "To summarize very simply, I think most oils are dangerous," he now says. Based on their ability to cause arthritis, the researchers assigned the oils "arthritis scores," ranging from (+), which was moderately toxic, to (++++), which was guaranteed to cripple. Of all the metabolizable oils tested by Pearson's group, two were better than all the others at causing arthritis: squalene and squalane, the same emulsifying oils that Bruce Ivins used in his single shot anthrax vaccines."

Squalene and squalane scored (+++) and (++++), respectively.

Yes, folks, Matsumoto is correct. According to researchers Whitehouse and Beck, oil-in-water, squalene-based adjuvants (aka MF-59) placed in vaccines are virtually GUARANTEED to make you very ill at the very least, and very likely will permanently cripple, or even kill you.

As Matsumoto documents in his amazing book, this “oil-in-water squalene adjuvant was shot into the veins of at least 100,000 American soldiers during Operation Desert Storm. Subsequent investigation and court filings later proved that these highly toxic squalene “oil-in-water” adjuvants were the primary cause of the intense symptoms called “Gulf War Syndrome” that disabled so many American service men and women. Now, the W.H.O. “Sages” are positioned to shoot this toxic sludge into 350 million American citizens to protect us from a weaponized swine flu virus, which of course perfectly matches the resurrected 1918 virus re-created by J. Taubenberger’s Ft. Detrick team as well. As people would ask Forrest Gump, I would ask the “Sages”: “Are you CRAZY, or just plain STUPID???”

Matsumoto further documents that the individual largely responsible for developing the toxic anthrax vaccine was none other than Dr. Bruce Ivins, who was also employed by Ft. Detrick. This of course, is the same Dr. Ivins who evidently committed suicide in 2008 – supposedly because of an ongoing FBI investigation into the 2001 anthrax letter attacks. With the premature death of Dr. Ivins, the case was closed and the likeliest suspect of all, Dr. Phillip Zack of Ft. Detrick’s team no longer seriously investigated.

Remember that shortly after the anthrax mailings, the Federal government warned that a “terrorist” attack using weaponized smallpox was eminent? Health and Human Services secretary Tommy Thompson at that time issued an order to have all “first responder” health care workers to receive mandatory smallpox vaccinations. The “first responders” saw through the bogus plan, however, and a potential catastrophe was averted when they refused the shots. Now, the same agenda is raising its ugly head once again, this time, however, it is disguised as an all-natural influenza virus with a much more deadly “vaccine” likely being administered by foreign troops brought in by FEMA and/or Homeland Security. The so-called “Novel” swine flu (H1N1) is in reality just as much a domestic “terrorist” biological weapon attack as the anthrax letters were in 2001, and is clearly, at least to this researcher, an extension of the so-called “Noahide Laws” intending to cripple, disable, or kill all “idolaters” not “worthy” to bring in the “New Order” of “God’s Chosen Race”.

To make a stand and stop this insane plan from reaching fruition, please personalize and file a copy of the plea for injunctive relief at your state’s U.S. District Court.
